IE Discovery Adds New Event History Feature to InfoDox™

Discovery Management Tool Now Tracks Productions from Start to Finish

Austin, Texas (February 11, 2008) - IE Discovery, a leading provider of comprehensive Discovery Management solutions for the legal community, announced today the addition of the Event History feature to its InfoDox discovery management tool. With Event History, counsel can instantly identify all documents (including redacted versions) that have been collected, reviewed or produced in connection with a particular matter or production request.

The Event History tool will make it easier to track productions from start to finish, enabling users to distinguish documents that were previously produced, scheduled for production or withheld from productions and determine the reasons why specific documents were withheld. The new feature also allows users to better manage rolling, incremental, and supplemental productions; production and privilege logs; and, clawbacks. By easily tracking productions, users can greatly improve the consistency and quality of their work product. Event History effectively eliminates the time-consuming, inefficient and expensive manual tracking of productions.

“A critical component of any organization's comprehensive Discovery Management plan is the ability to track and report on information produced externally to opposing counsel, regulators, and others,” said Patrick McColloch, Director, Client Services at IE Discovery. “The latest improvements to the InfoDox platform allow our clients to quickly and easily monitor all production-related milestones, providing greater work quality and significant control.”
